The College of The Albemarle Foundation was formed in 1989 to provide a permanent endowment for the college, its students, and its people of the Albemarle. The foundation's purpose is to meet the needs of the college which cannot be met from other sources. Among these are student scholarships and awards, faculty salaries, and library books and periodicals, and equipment, and many others.

Now people have more than a hundred ways to support the college. Some have donated money, some have donated books, some have donated land, and some have donated other things. The foundation has been successful in raising money for the college, and it will continue to do so in the future.

The College of The Albemarle Foundation was formed in 1980 as a non-profit organization to receive tax deductible donations which will benefit the college, its students, and the people of the Albemarle region. Foundation funds meet the needs of the college which cannot be met through traditional funding sources. Among these are student scholarships and other forms of financial aid, library books and periodicals, instructional equipment, cultural activities, and many others.

Many people have made donations to the COA Foundation in memory or in honor of friends and loved ones. Some have established scholarship funds for deserving students, while some have donated funds for various specific purposes. Many have left the use of their funds to the discretion of the foundation board of directors.

More than $12,000 will be awarded in 1984-85 in scholarships for COA students. Among these are:

Mary and Zack Robertson, Sr., Nursing Scholarship
Northeastern Home Builders Association Scholarship
Carrie M. and J. Samuel Roebuck Scholarship

Annual Fund Drives

In 1983 and 1984, the COA Foundation conducted its first annual fund drives and netted contributions and pledges of more than $107,000 during the two years. Ninety-nine percent of the amount pledged by donors was received. More than 500 individuals, businesses, and corporations contributed during each annual fund drive. Funds received during the annual fund drive are used for scholarships, staff development, instructional equipment and books, cultural activities, and special events.

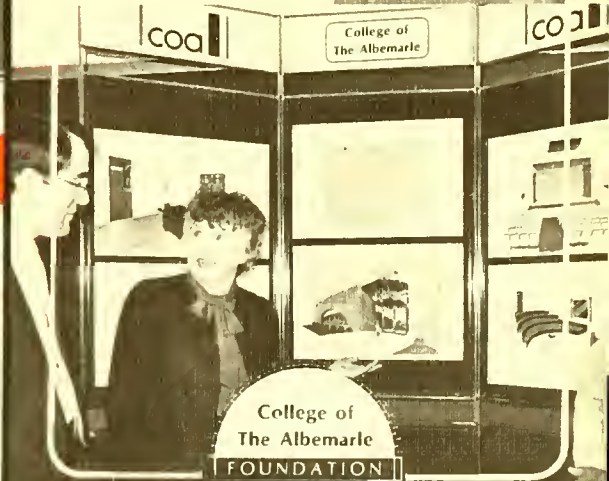

Future Plans

The COA Foundation is involved in a drive to raise at least $500,000 toward the construction of the COA Community and Small Business Center. The foundation will take this drive to the service area communities in the spring of 1985. The center will house a large auditorium and facilities for small business training.
